For general questions about the trip, contact Marti foxymarti@bedoninc.com. Additionally, Heather Young was kind enough to highlight that “the state of Utah requires a health certificate within 30 days and a Coggins within 12 months. It can take a week to 10 days to get Coggins blood work back—unless you pay extra to rush it (BTDT!) In our experience, the livestock border check at AZ/CA line is usually thorough, having done it several times. If you are bringing your own horses, it’s recommended that you arrange for your vet to come out 2-ish weeks in advance of your departure date to pull blood for the Coggins and issue a health certificate.”

Thank you,
